

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An RF apparatus includes at least one of an exterior periphery surface and an interior periphery surface, and a plurality of conductive members including a plurality of conductive fibers. The plurality of conductive fibers are situated in a polymer forming a conductive region situated in relation 5 to at least one of the exterior periphery surface and the interior periphery surface.